SAYS the Foothern Echo: - We regret to learn that the firm of Messrs. E. D. Sassoon & Co., opium merchants, intend to close their agency at this port by the end of the year, owing to their inability to compete with the native importers, who, we hear can afford to sell and are always selling their drugs at five to ten dollars cheaper than foreign importers can, owing to their trading expenses being so very small.

WE take the following from Messrs. Wheelock & Co.'s market report of the 23rd inst. :- Since date of our last report, 9th instant, steam rates to London by all lines have advanced. ( oastwise .--Our market may be considered fairly good, but there being a great scarcity of tonna e, little diggings, which had been washed by hand of himself, the Acting Colonial Treasurer, Mr. J. business has been done here. The fixtures for the coal carrying trade between Nagasaki and this have chiefly been done in Japan. The demand for the Newchwang-Swatow trade has almost ceased, the season is drawing to a close. For London, via usual ports of call and Suez Canal :- The departure of the Mutual Line steamship Kaisow on the 16th instant has left the berth entirely to the Mails and Holt's, the former now booking cargo at 60s. Holt's steamship Orestes arrived yesterday and is fully engagedat 50s ishe will leave on Wednesday the 28th inst., and will be followed by the same Company's steamer Ainx, leaving on the 4th proximo, rate 55s. per ton'of 40 cubic feet. For New York, via usual ports of call and Suez Canal :- Thes.s. Euphrates is fully engaged at 551, and will be dispatched to-day, direct; the Ben Line s.s. Benalder follows, arriving here about the end of the month with a portion of cargo from Japan, her rate will be 60s, per ton. The Norwegian barque Isabel is still loading and will probably get away early next month. The s.s. Empire, due any day, chartered at home, will take her place at the advanced rate of 30s, per ton of 40 feet. Quotations are:-Newchwang to Swatow, 25 Mex. cents per picul, steam, no enquiry. Chefoo to Swatow, 13 Mex. cents per picul, small demand. Nagasaki to Shanghal, $1.85 per ton of Coal nett, for steamers; 1.20 ex ship, for sailing vessels. Settlements during the fortnight:-Chateaubriand, British barque, 410 tons register. Keelung to Ningpo, $2.00 per ton coal, 14 lay days. Two important cases were disposed of this week at the Supreme Court in Criminal Sessions, and although the charge in either case was that of murder, the issues were entirely different, and the ve dicts diverged to the fullest extremes of conviction and acquittal respectively. The convicts charged with the murder of turnkey Percira were. found not guilty, whilst the Little Hongkong marauders were convicted on an identical charge and incontinently sentenced to death. We de not propose to enquire into the intrinsic value in which capital punishment is held by the Chinese criminal classes, both as a retribution and as a deterrent for we are intimately convinced that death is not taken either as a punishment or as a deterrent by the adherents of fatalism, among THE Viceroy of Fohkien has been thoroughly whom the native criminal classes stand conspicu-Contining ourselves to the verdicts returned in the two cases of murder tried at the Supreme Court, we think the discrepancy is hardly justifiable in view of the evidence adduced and of the circumstances attending both cases. We would opine either for a verdict of willu murder, or for an acquittal in either case-on the plea of allowing the prisoners the benefit of the doubt. Percira's murderers are in our opinion a far more detestable class of people than the Little Hongkong assassing. Th crime of the former was perpetrated, if we are to trust eye-witnesses, under the most distressing circumstances. The turnkey was barbarously attacked while in the exercise of his duty; the escaped convicts did all they could to master him; caused him to fall overboard; when the poor man was struggling in the sea, they struck him with bamboos; and, exactly in keeping with the barbarous practice adopted by heartless rogues, they kept on striking at him every time he appeared on the surface, until he appeared no more. On Pereira's body and head, if we remember aright, marks of violence were subsequently discovered, fully confirming the report given by eye-witnesses, that he had been struck both before and after he fell or was pitched into the sea. There was also the presumption against the prisoners, of determined attempt and effort to suppress the onl element of opposition they had to contend with in order to make good their escape, and the aggravating circumstance that they were undergoing various terms of imprisonment for previous misdeeds and crimes. In the Little Hongkong murder none of these circumstances obtained. The men were unknown to the Police ; the assault and murder were perpetrated without any concomitant act of barbarity, and it is quite possible that the intention of the prisoners was not to assassingle the inhabitant of the premises which they were bent on looting. The crime was perpetrated in the dead of night, and only one eye-witness, a boy, came forward to identify the perpetrators. We do not question the regularity of this identification. In nothing, is the sound commonserse of the Chinese Government more clearly shown than in the sale of official rank, when any great emergency arises requiring money. Official rank, so-called, is purely honorary; it is a mere name without any practical signification whatever. Buttons cost the Government next to nothing, and yet they form a never failing source of revenue. The Governor of Kiangsi reports in the Peking. Gazette that Tis. 54,424 were realised in his province from the sale of official rank during the first seven months of the present year, of which Tis. 22,000 were remitted to Shantung for excivating the bed of the Yellow River in that province, and Tis. 18,314 were sent to Honan for repair of the breach at Cheng Chou. During subsequent months he had sold 198 official titles, for which a sum of Tis. 12,697 were received and placed in the Treasury pending the receipt of instructions from the Board as to its disposal. The Viceroy of Sechuan and the Governor of Formosa send in similar reports, During the seventh month of the present year, the former had sold over fifty appointments and realised Tls. 3,465 while in Formosa the proceeds from the same source during the first four months | 1 kg of the year amounted to Tls. 6,236.

WE find the following in the Times of the 22nd ulto.; - In the last past report from the British Consular Agent at Sandakan, the capital of British North Borneo, reference is made to the planting of tobacco in this new territory. The cuitivation of "wrap" tobacco has proved exceed. incly lucrative in Sumatra, where some of the leading companies pay dividends of over 100 per cent, and in one case 152 per cent. was paid in 1886. The tobacco combines quality with clasticity and extreme thinness, so that the leaf covers a large number of cigars. The value attached to it may be judged from the fact that while the price of ordinary smoking tobacco is about 5d. per lb., wholesale and in bond "wrap" fetches from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. On the other hand, the cultivation is attended by unusual risks and very heavy expenses, and it was long thought that the peculiar conjunction of soil and climate necessary for its production was confined to Sumatra. But experiments have shown that t can also also be grown in British North Borneo. Samples from there were highly recommended at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, and suitable land for the purpose is being eagerly taken up, chiefly by Dutch planters. Most of the capital employed and of the Europeans engaged are Dutch, because hitherto the production of wrap" tobacco has been almost entirely a Dutch industry carried on in Dutch colonies One of the principal reasons for the Duich purchasing tobacco lands outside their own colonies is the very heavy taxation to which they are subjected by their own Government, Java the planter has to pay coolie poll-taxes, a' licence tax, high railway charges, export and many other dues, and in addition has to pay yearly a tax on his Tand which would buy i outright on a 999 years' lease in North Borneo. where there are practically no taxes or imposts whatever, except those on opium, spirits, and the like. Hence the Dutch are not only prospecting the country for tobacco, but also for augar, coffee, and other cultivation,

The adjourned hearing of the case of alleged smuggling of ninety balls of opium was up before Mr. Wodehouse again this morning.

I consider it a very bad case indeed -they were in a boat, trying to evade the Customs-in fact the very reason they were discovered was because they were acting in so suspicious a manner as to draw attention to themselves. As the people whom they called their principals decline to come forward and speak the truth I must deal with them as the principals. The opium was to be confiscated.

> NIGHT WITH THE AMERICAN MUSICAL COMEDY AND OPERA COMPANY.

The members of the American Musica Comedy and Opera Company have never been seen to less advantage than they were at the Theatre Royal, City Hall, last night in Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera "The Sorcerer." For some reason which we are quite unable ! fithom the opera was badly staged and dressed while both the singing and acting were, with the single exception of Mr. Charles Fisher, far below par There were apparently no "supers" available so that the entire population of an important village consisted of Mesdames Vera Patey Gracie Whiteford, Flo Morrison and Nellie Arline, and Messra. Phil. Ray and Whiffen Cripps. From the rise of the curtain to its fall it' was pain'ully apparent that "The Sorcerer" had been insufficiently rehearsed, and that moreover, its adequate representation was beyond the available strength of the Company." Unfortunately for the performers of last night, "The Sorcerer," thoroughly well put on the stage, had been most ably represented last season by the members of the Hongkong Choral Society, and a comparison between the two shows could not possibly be avoided Our local amateurs are, with two or three brilliant exceptions, anything but flyers in the operatic line of business, but in "The Sorcerer." musical knowledge, careful and long continued rehenrals, a powerful chorus, and a capital mise en scène enabled them to come off with flying colours, whereas last night's representation was very little short of a ghastly fulure. But even! analysing the two different casts, amateur and professional, the amateurs in every Instance. excepting Alexis, more than held their own We would recommend the management of the American Musical C medy and Opera Company: either to devote some time and attention in properly getting up "The Sorcerer" for stag representation or to wipe it clean off their repertoire.

We can only allude very briefly to last night's performance in detail. By far and away the best played part in the opera was the Alexis of Mr. C. Fisher. His acting was of a spirited character throughout and he sang in his very best form, which is saying a good deal. Alexis is an officer of the Grenadier Guards, but Mr. Fisher were a hybrid uniform which certainly is not known in the British Army. The frogged and profusely ornamented tunic and pantalgons reminded us forcibly of Nepomics in the " Grand to say unkind things about painstaking artistes about nothing of ability like Mr Sutch, but there is no disguising the fact that his Sir Marmaduke looked like a flunkey and acted like a plonghman. Mr. John F. Sheridan's John Wellington Wells was a ridiculous travesty of the character, totally unlike anything ever previously seen on the local stage. Of course Mr. Sheridan is a consummate artists, an actor of a thousand, but he can't play the Cockney commercial traveller in "The Sorcerer"-or, at all events, he did not do it last night, and he was not letter perfect. A good word must be said for Mr. I hil Ray's artistic rendering of the small part of the Notary. Miss Whiteford was passable as Mr. Johnson left the case in the hands of the Constance, but Miss Vera Patey was quite out of her element as the old pew opener she did not appear able to grasp the character of Mrs. Partlett. Next to Mr. Fisher the most successful member in the cast was Mr. J. A. Robertson, the able conductor, who did everything that mortal man could do to achieve a success that was impossible. Proprietary and Company We have already expressed the opinion that the forte of the professional artistes now in our midst is in musical or farcical comedy, and the accuracy of this view was clearly enough shown the in last night's performance of Sydney Grundy's "Arabian Nights." Anything better in its way We must not omit to add that there was a very

And it is in a true sportsmanlike spirit that I have investigated the existing difficulty which threatens to swamp our forthcoming Regatta, and now take the liberty of stating my views to the members of the V.R.C. and the community generally.

Major Ellis, the stroke of the English International crew, has had a bont specially built for the Regatta. It is exactly on the same lines as the ordinary Club boats, and, if anything, weighs a few pounds heavier to was specially designed. I believe, to suit a very heavy man in the Military team-of which Major Ellis is stroke in all the races where they are entered. So far as I can ascertain this new boat is not in any respect an improvement on the Club craft; however, the Irish, Danish, and German crews object, and threaten to "scratch" unless the English take their chance in one of the old

It seems to me that the objection of the Irish, Danish and German crews to Major Ellis's new boat is quite frivolous, and *cannot be upheld. In every important respect the boat is identical with those already in use, and. I cannot find anything in the V.R.C. rules to p event a stroke building a boat for himself and rowing in it at the Regatta-always previding that said boat meets the conditions of the races in which it is used. In fact, precedent is all the other way. I speak under correction, as I have not seen Mr. Woodin on the subject, but unless my memory: serves me badly that veteran parsman in years gone by invariably rowed in his own bonts, which were built under his special instructions. If I am wrong Mr. Woodin will doubtless correct me, but I do not think I can possibly be mistaken. Again, some seven or eight years ago, Mr. J. Sampson, who was one of the leading English representatives and a first class rower, had a boat specially constructed for the crews he was to "stroke" at the Regatta. That boat was named the Leek, and doubtless she is still in

From the foregoing paragraph it must be apparent to everybody that the objection of the German, Dinish, and Irish crews to the new boat is not supported either by rule or precedent; it is therefore invalid. But this is really a matter which should be judged from the view of true sportsmen rather than from any hard and fast rule. It is evident enough that Major Ellis is clearly entitled to race his new boat under the Club rules, and his position is strengthened by the precedents above quoted. On what tangible ground then, it may fairly be asked, has this objection been lodged? I cannot find any ground, as no allegation has been made that the new boat differs in any material respect from the well tried old boats, which are a credit to the Club, The objecting crews have therefore been actuated in raising this trouble by motives which, to say the least, are not sportsmanlike. Hid an attempt been made to obtain an unfair advantage, a protest would certainly have been in orders but no such assertion has been advanced.

"I regret that two of the objecting boats fly foreign flags. The Victoria Recreation Club is a British institution in a British colony, but it can justly claim to have held out the right hand of good fellowship in relation to the encouragement of manly sport to all nationalities. And hitherto good-will and harmony have almost universally prevailed. Candidly speaking, do these Danish am clerk to Messrs. Wotton and Deacon. I abould like very much to throw oil on the troubled waters, if possible. If the German and Danish crews really believe they have a grievance and are unwilling to follow the ruling of the Committee, the matter at issue could easily be referred to two or three independent gentlemen whose decision would be final. There can be no difficulty in arranging this, and further trouble might then be avoided. I suggest this modus oberandi because it is quite certain that the attempt to coerce the Committee into disqualifying Major Ellis's boat will not succeed. Unless an amicable arrangement can be arrived at the executive of the Club must act according to rule, and precedent, and the Regatta will have to suffer. [We do not mecessarily andorse the opinions expressed by TOMMY ATKINS AT THE THEATRE. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HOMORONO TELEGRAPH.

Sta.-Will you permit me to point out, through the medium of your valuable columns. a fact which I consider a great disgrace to the soldiers who attend the performances of the Musical Comedy and Opera Company now playing here.
I have no doubt you have noticed that the members of the pit seem to think it a great joke to make themselves a source of annoyance to any ladies who sit, in the stalls, by applanding and seeing at them when they go to their seats No doubt some of the fairer sex take it as a compliment, but at the same time it seems rough that respects ble ladies cannot reach their meats without being jeered at by 4 lot of men who call themselves "British soldiers," but who last night behaved like a pack of cade and naval organization?"] Different men will advocate different lines of action as the most necessary for strengthening and enriching the Chinese Empire, but as for me, the very first step demanded for attaining to the object in view is the exclusive prohibition of opium. And why? Because opium is the source of poverty, and the fountain of weakness; without eradicating this potential source of weakness; and poverty, the enrichment and strengthening of China will be impossible.

Foreigners in introducing opium into China are not simply desirous of seeking gain, their ulterior motive is to impoverish and debauch

Judging from the stringency with which they prohibit oplum in their own country, and their engerness in introducing it into ours, it is not difficult to understand their intentions. Is their action justifiable by the principles of international law? Not only do they introduce opium into China, but they assist us to collect revenue, guard against smuggling, and to further the consumption of drug.

What is their motive for so doing? Because they are well aware that China, in her pressing and incessant demands for providing for the desence of the maritime coast, must have need of vast funds, which funds she cannot supply out of her treasury, but must procure from the revenue on anium.

But, inasmuch as China will not of her own accord seek to enlarge the trade in opium for the sake of the revenue, nor will she take the requisite steps to prevent amuggling, it follows as a matter of necessity that foreigners must do it for her. When the consumption of opium is limited, it cannot weaken China; and if the revenue from the same is inconsiderable China cannot be impoverished. Alas ! When will the continual incoming of the "black dirt!" (opium) and the exhaustless outflow of our white silver cease !

But these visible effects of opium are as nothing compared with the invisible evil influences of the opium habit. Opium is a thing which; while a highly nexious poison, has the quality of making people forget it as such, and creates in its consumers an insatiable craving for its use. That is why foreigners call it "Opi." (sic.)

When one smokes it moderately its effect is stitmulating and invigorating, besides alleviating pain and sustaining the intellectual faculties; when taken in excessive quantities, it 'creates a habitual craving and leaves its victim impaired in vitality and energy, and reduced in flesh and blood. When people are thus impaired, they have not the vitality to attain to old age, and this is an essential source of weakening to China.

The tendency of opium is also to demoralise and render idle its victime; so that when once having contracted the habit, they will become thoroughly corrupt and indolent, willing to do nothing, and ready, if necessity requires, to abandon parents and relatives, to steal and rob and even sell wife and children. This is a potent source of impoverishing our people. As time goes on this impoverishment and weakening will continue, so that at last nothing will be left to posterity but ruin. Alasi since it is the intention of foreigners to thus sap China's strength and resources is not the absolute prohibition of opium the first step toward China's regeneration and enrichment? - Shin Pao.

DIPLOMACY IN ANCIENT CHINA.

[Abstract of a paper read by Dr. Martin at a meeting of the Peking Oriental Society on the 25th of October.]

Diplomacy is an art new to the Chinese. but one for which they evince a marvellous aptitude. With them it is the revival of a lost art-one which rose with the feudal institutions of the Chows, and flourished most in the stormiest period of that famous dynasty. Diplomacy may be defined as the art of conducting the intercourse of nations. It supposes the existence of states that carry on their intercourse on a footing of equality. This makes it evident why it flourished in the period referred to; why it disappeared like a stream absorbed in the sands of a boundless desert; and why it has re-appeared in our own day, after an interval of more than two thousand years.

The triumph of Chin, by which all rival states were swept from the arena, was the death-blow of ancient diplomacy. The empire was thenceforth one and indivisible Burmah, and from the foot of the Himalayas to the shores of the Eastern sea. No rival, no equal, was known to exist on the face of the when the league was still in a nebulous condition, globe. Envoys no longer sped on secret missions from court to court. These they sought both at home and abroad, attracting to their Court men of talent from neighbouring countries by they offer of high office and great rewards. One instance this policy. A young man by the name Shang Yang, who was well versed in political science, sought employment with the Prince of Wei. The prince hesitated. "Kill him, said his Minister, "if you do not employ him; but never permit him to give his great abilities to the service of a rival state," The prince still hesitated; and Shang Yang proceeded to the Court of Chin, where he was warmly welcomed, and reformed everything from a lopted country attained such power as to was about to send a beautiful woman as his threaten the independence of all the other ransom. Alone and unfriended he presented himself at the Court of Yen, on the site of our present Peking. Here it was, on the very ground where we are now assembled, that the grand drama began to unfold. Without money or influence. he found no ready way to open the doors of the great; and for a whole year danced attendance on numerous courtiers before he could induce anyone to procure him an interview with the

That interview was decisive. Su was not the only one who saw the danger to which the other. states were exposed by the aggressions of hin; but he alone saw how it could be averted. In eloquent terms he set forth the necessity, of immediate action; and showed that the onlyhope of successful resistance lav in the formation of an alliance, which, diverting the forces of the six states from the mad work of mutual destruction, would turn their united strength | "International Law in Ancient China," against a common foe. The prince was delighted, the feasibility of the scheme was no longer doubtful, and by carrying it into execution he would secure to himself the honour of taking the lead in a patriotic movement of unparalleled importance. He invested Su with the rank of ambassador; and despatched him with letters

By gaining the Prince of Ch'u, he forged successfully the last link of his long chain-a chain strong enough to confine an unscrupulous aggressor within bounds; and to secure in a great measure the blessings of peace to a family of states hitherto discordant and belligerent "For fifteen years," says the historian, "the armies of Chin did not dare to show themselves outside the mountain pass of Hanku."

The man who could effect this was worthy of all the honours that could be heaped upon him: His chief dignity, was that of President of the Sextuple League; and in order that he night render it effective each of the six powers conferred on him the seal of a separate chancellor-

The masterly arguments by which Su conquered his ascendancy are given in extenso in the voluminous work of Szema. They read more like state papers than like the speeches that ivy is wont to put into the mouth of his heroes. How skilfuly he adapts his mode of address to the disposition of each ruler? In one he kindles ambition, in another jealousy; he flatters the pride of a third, and awakens the shame of a

This last case is worth particularising. The, prince of Han was inclined to attach himself to the great power of the West. Su concluded his speech, by asking "If it was not better to be the head of a chicken than the tail of an ox)"-a proverb which, from its use on that occasion, has acquired an undying celebrity.

To Su's brother, Sutai, himself a skilful diplomatist, is ascribed the proverb; "When bird and oyster fight together, the fisherman bags both," one of those shining nuggets, which in China the departing stream of time has left so plentifully scattered among its sands.

The elder Su, by yielding to a tender passion, and becoming involved in an undiplomatic intrigue, did more to undo his life-work than his worst enemy had previously been able to effect.

That enemy was Changi, his quondam comrade at the school of Devil's Hollow. . In talent little if at all inferior to Su, Chang's career is wanting in that unity which imparts a kind of grandeur to the achievements of the former. His life was divided between internal administration and external politics. As administrator and military chief he served by turns two or three states, always securing a temporary preponderance to the one that employed him-unlike his rival who served six at once, and promoted equally the interests of all. .

As a negotiator he effected one or two partial alliances; but his chief claim to distinction is from the desert of Tartary to the borders of the skill he displayed in sowing discord among the members of the eastern league.

Smarting under an insult received from Su he posted away to the capital of Chin, resolved clothed with the dignity of Prime Minister.

. It was in his diplomatic character that he performed the most marvellous feats. Labouring The best way to treat the subject on the lie undo the work of Su, he continued to keep him in a state of perpetual anxiety during his "names," and endeavour to evoke from them | life-time, and ultimately to effect the dissolution the busy actors in a slow but momentous of the confederacy immediately on the death of ts author.

The most remarkable incident in his career occurred in the kingdom of Ch'u. The army of Ch'u had been totally routed in a conflict with Chin; and the Prince of the latter, demanded as the price of peace the cession of a disputed territory in exchange for

"No," replied the vanquished chief, "give me. your Chancellor, who has always been plotting mischief sgainst me, and I will surrender the territory without asking a foot of ground in

This was a little like Philip's demand for out of many will suffice to illustrate the effect of the surrender of Demosthenes-a proposition and Adelaide, by absorbing the reserve fund of which the orator likened to wolves demanding £50,000, and writing £3 per share off the of shepherds the surrender of their dogs as a condition of peace.

The Prince reported the strange proposal to his Minister, probably with no thought of compliance. To his surprise, Changi answered ; "I am ready send me to the camp of the enemy." On anival he was thrown into prison and menaced with death, but he had an acquaintance at court, whom he could rely on as amicus in for. the tenure of land to the discipline of the army. | curia. He had gone forth alone and unattended-a voluntary victim offering to be sacrificed to the resentment of an enemy. He returned, leading in his train the envoys of two hostile powers.

Sent on special missions to the other powers, was the senior, and he had the good for- he had the satisfaction of seeing them also brought to accept the liegs money of the Prince

The paper goes on to show how the minor states were alternately attracted and repelled like electrified balls; and how the Eastern confederacy was in part resuscitated by the labours of Kungsun Yen, a diplomatist, who on that account is sometimes compared to Su. It relates the diplomatic triumphs of Liu Siang-ju, in restoring to his master a priceless gem; and in compelling the Prince of Ch'in to keep time to his master's music. This last incident is compared to the audacity of Bismarck in lighting his cigar in the presence of the Austrian Ambassador, when Austria had the leadership of the Diet

In either case a trivial act was invested with a grave political significance, and it required diplomatic talent of the highest order to turn i to account: The object of the paper is to show diplomacy in action rather than to set forth rules of theories; hence an apparent excess of hi torics detail. There were recognized rules forming a kind of code, as shown in the writer's paper on chooses not to repeat what he has there said. Among those rules and usages there was :-

THE BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.

There is such a large business carried on between China and New Zealand that the affairs of the above named bank, which have recently caused so much talk in the financial world, must have considerable interest for residents in this colony and at the Coast Poris. At a meeting lately held at Auckland, the report of the Committee appointed by the shareholders was presented. After a most searching investigation it has been decided to meet the losses caused by depreci tion of securities, imprudent advances in Auckland, and bad management in Sydney existing £10 shares. The capital is also to be increased by £1,000,000, in £10 shares, half to be issued at once, and this has already been practically taken up, The Board of Directors and the general manager in New Zealand have also been changed. At the meeting reference was made to the improved prospects of the Bank and to the fact that the losses were fully provided the Bank of New Zealand, the Economist of the 6th ulto, says :-The Managing Director of this bank has issued

In April, 18 7, the reserve fund amounted to £625.000 and this, together with £300,000 of the capital, has been absorbed by losses of one kind and another. It would be easy to make too. much of the bank's severe reverses, for there can be no doubt that its interests have suffered, to say the least, from wild and reckless management. A But although its experience cannot be taken as a fair criterion of that of other New Zealand institutions, there can be no doubt that there has been a disposition in the Australasian colonies to go ahead a little too fast. Not only have the Colonial Governments borrowed very . The Association in Hongkong is under the large amounts, and been lavish in their expenditure upon public works, but the banks and other institutions have lent rather too freely upon land, &c., which has stood at inflated prices. Dated this 20th day of November, 1888 1183 MAEN SHING.

NOTICE.

Silk and Fire Crackers

THE Undersigned respectfully inform the Foreign Merchants in Canton that for the past twenty: years they have carried on business. in silk piece-goods in Sai-Hing Street, Canton, under the chop signification of "TSUN SHING," and venture to believe that the superior quality of their goods have given universal satisfaction to their customers. In order to avoid possible mposition they have considered it indispensable to prefix to their designation the surname of the head of the firm, "CHAN" and henceforth the Firm's signification, in the silk branch, will be known as "CHAN TSUN SHING." Further, in respect of the Fire Cracker branch, which hitherto has been carried on under the itle of "MAEN SHING," under which we have icted as sole dealers in Canton for many years and during this period our chop, by reason of the superior quality of the ingredients we employ is well as the first class character of our manufacture, has maintained its pre-eminent position in the markets of the United States of America but lately numerous fraudulent imitations of our goods have been attempted, which has necessitated, in the interests of the public, our establishing a new Fire Cracker brand that will hereafter be known as the "CONSTITUTION" Cracker. It will be recognised by our old established mark underneath, viz., No. I Golden Dragon chop and our new prefixed title "CHAN MARN SHING" at the bottom of the label of our Fire Crackers.

CHAN TSUN SHING for Silk Branch. CHAN MAEN SHING, for Fire Cracker Branch, N.B. -Fire Crackers without our brand as above, will not be genuine. Canton, 1st November, 1888. [1107
